TRIPLE-X WORKERS CALL FOR JUSTICE IN THE DEATHS OF TWO NEW WESTMINSTER WORKERS

Triple-X Workers' Solidarity Association of B.C. is calling for justice in the deaths of two workers from New Westminister. Karen Nabors, 48, was found on Sunday, August 25 in her suite at the Elmwood Apartments in the 200 block of 11th Street. Jill Lyons, 45, was found inside her suite in the same building on August 12. Police suspect foul play in the deaths and are investigating and are conducting toxicology tests.

We remind Triple-X Workers to stay safe.

SAFETY TIPS

Emergency

Don't hesitate to call 911 if you fear for your safety. Keep your cell phone close by.

Work together

If working alone, call a partner in front of the client. Tell them you are starting a session and what time you'll call back. Even repeat customers.

Keep a log

Log all client inquiries with phone numbers, names, email addresses, etc.

Don't see clients you have no information about.

Share information

Report all bad dates including suspicious clients.

Be careful

Do not ingest any substance a client could have tampered with, including condoms and lube.

Never work while impaired.

Triple-X Workers stand together against abuse, exploitation and harassment of all workers.
